

ABOUT MFLN

The Military Families Learning Network (MFLN) engages military family service providers with Cooperative Extension educators in the exchange of experiences and research to enhance professional impact and encourage professional growth. Through the formation and expansion of a skill, collaborative network of professionals, we help ensure significant positive outcomes for military service members and their families. The MFLN Military Caregiving concentration area works to identify professional development opportunities for military helping professionals.

LEARN MORE

NETWORK CONCEPT

SUPPORT professional development and performance improvement through innovative technologies such as interactive web conferencing and online asynchronous learning modules.

ENGAGE subject matter experts and military helping professionals to identify needs of the caregiving community through formal and informal evaluation.

EDUCATE military helping professionals, service members, and families on issues related to caregiving through quality, reliable programming, listening and responding to their learning needs.

LEARN MORE

CONTINUING ED.

The MFLN Military Caregiving concentration area provides a variety of FREE online learning opportunities to support professional growth and training. For some licensed and credentialed professionals, continuing education credit is approved by nationally accredited agencies such as the University of Texas at Austin – Steve Hicks School of Social Work and the Commission for Case Manager Certification. Certificates of completion are available for providers interested in documenting their training activities and hours. Find a topic and platform that is right for you: offerings range from a 30-minute podcast to a multi-day conference experience.

LEARN MORE

MFLN MILITARY CAREGIVING

Engaging military helping professionals and educators in the exchange of experiences and research to enhance the professional impact and encourage professional growth.

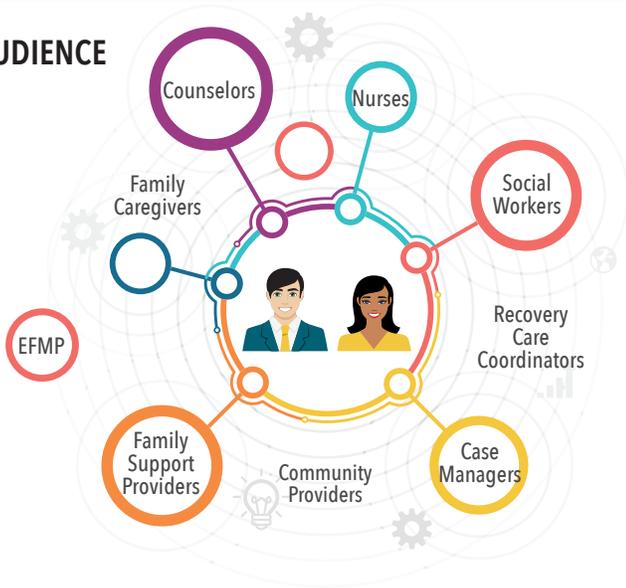

MILITARY FAMILIES
LEARNING NETWORK

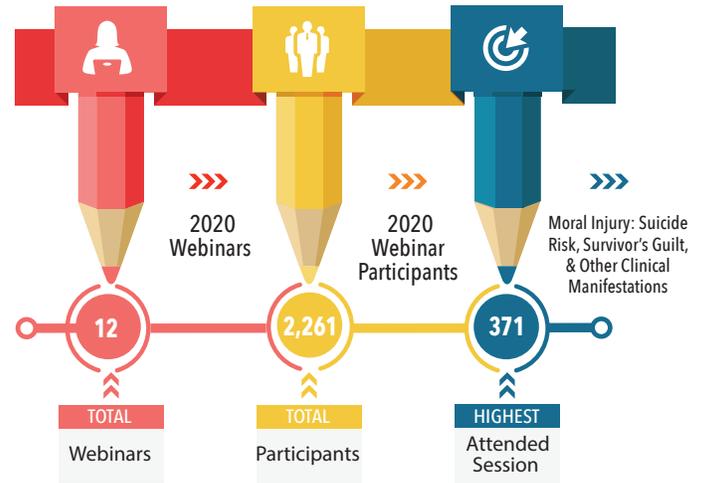

2020 Year in Review

Military caregiving, much like caregiving for the population in general, touches many more families than the numbers reflect. Providing support and services for service members, veterans and caregivers is a socioeconomic challenge in the United States, especially among the wounded warrior and special needs populations. The MFLN Military Caregiving concentration provides educational programs to a variety of military helping professionals that assist family caregivers.

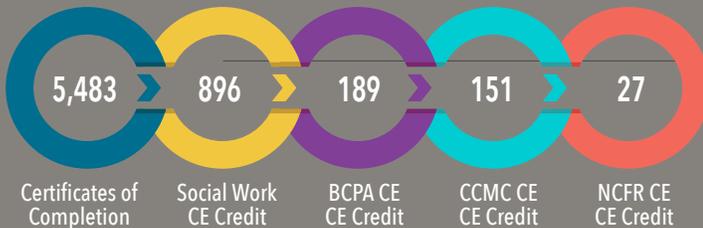

AUDIENCE

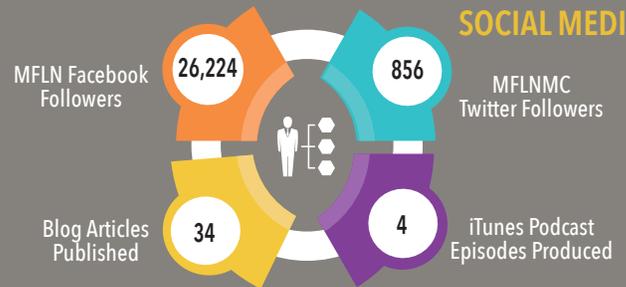

WEBINARS

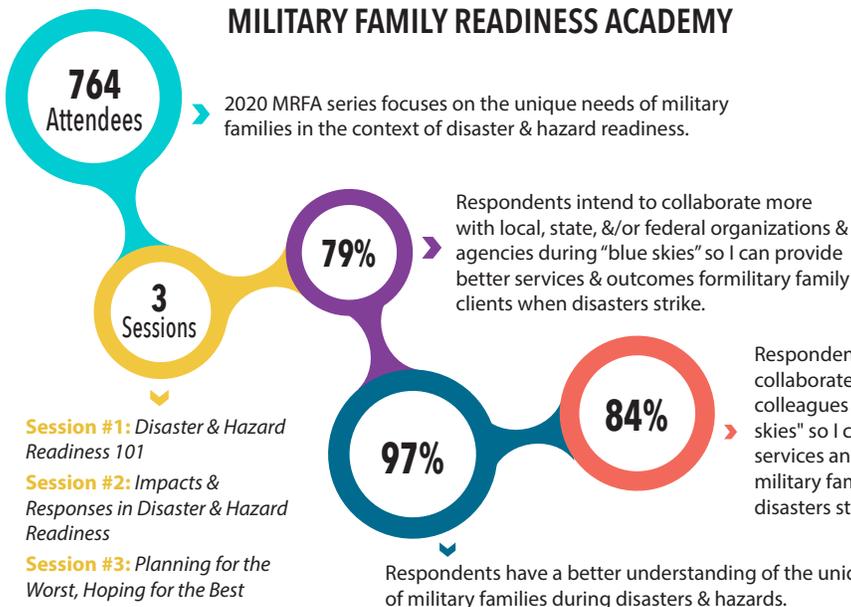

CONTINUING EDUCATION

SOCIAL MEDIA

MILITARY FAMILY READINESS ACADEMY

ONLINE COURSES

4,511
Online Course Completions

